CERTIFICATE COURSE IN ORNAMENTAL FISH BREEDING

(Offered by Department of Zoology)

PROGRAMME OUTLINE

India's share in global ornamental fish trade is negligible and at present the ornamental fish export from India is dominated by the wild caught species. Ornamental fish culture in India involves breeding of exotic species and this activity is a small segment of the Fisheries Sector. India is endowed with a suitable climate, water resources and large manpower base. The potential manpower can be easily trained into ornamental fish breeding technology and fast-growing domestic market. The Government of India has also identified this sector as one of the thrust area for development and providing employment to the rural poor as well as unemployed youth. In addition to that, earning potential of this sector has hardly been understood and the same is not being exploited due to lack of skilled human resources who can be self-employed as well as can play a key role for disseminating the technology of ornamental fishery as an earning tool to different places of the country.
